Now in its 18th year, Quail Hill Community Farm is accepting new members. The harvest season began on Saturday, June 2 and runs through October. Harvest days are Saturdays and Tuesdays from 8 AM to 5:30 PM. Quail Hill Farm is located in Amagansett on 214 acres of land donated by Deborah Ann Light to the Peconic Land Trust and grows 250 varieties of organic vegetables, fruit, herbs and flowers.

A visit to the farm is a perfect way to consider joining. You could go home with a bag filled with peas, fava beans, spinach, lettuce, arugula, tatsoi, garlic scapes, bok choy, Japanese turnips, and a wide selection of herbs. For more information on Family Household Summer Shares, Single Person Summer Shares and Winter Shares please call Laura Fischer or Pam Greene at the Peconic Land Trust at 631.283.3195.

Quail Hill Farm is a stewardship project of the Peconic Land Trust. Additional information about Quail Hill Farm and the Trust can be found online at www.PeconicLandTrust.org or by calling 631.283.3195.
